

Find Their Sparks!

GET TO KNOW WHO YOUR KIDS ARE

The major component of thriving is the concept of “sparks”—the interests and passions young people have that light a fire in their lives and express the essence of who they are and what they offer to the world. Identifying those sparks, and pursuing them with the help of deep, supportive relationships, are critical components in the work of helping a young person thrive.

Use this Google sheet to create a list of what sparks your students’ interests. You can edit the cells to include more of what you would like to know; you can include a favorite color, number of siblings, and perhaps whether they play sports or have a job. The goal is to initiate conversations with the students that are not necessarily school related, and to empower them to discover and nurture their sparks. This sheet will be a great resource for you and your team!

Are there some kids you know very little about? Share the Google sheet with your whole staff and have them fill out some of the blanks you may have! Feel free to share with classified as well.

Click HERE to download the Google sheet

BRIEF

Search Institute/Sparks and Thriving